In conclusion he desired to say that he was more than satisfied by his trip to this country, and more than pleased with what he had seen. (Loud applause.)

powerful forces which we have enabled to lead here since our return to a citizen's life, passing through the North-West Territory, you will have been able to judge for yourself of the work that has been done by the forces during the fourteen years in which it has been established.

We, the ex-members of that force, have now formed ourselves into an Association for mutual aid and benefit, in which, as long as exists, the name of Sir John Macdonald will always be revered and respected.

It only remains for us to wish Lady Macdonald and yourself a safe and pleasant journey, and to express a hope that our mountain air may prove beneficial to a health so valuable to our common country as is your own.

Sir John in reply, said that he was glad to meet them for he had always taken the greatest interest in the work of the North-West. He gave a short sketch of the history of the force and concluded by stating his belief that it was one of the finest forces in the world.

HEROIC ORIGIN OF A PHRASE.—Sophia—As the origin of a phrase she had frequently heard of late, viz: "Read the answer in the stars." We give its origin cheerfully. It has nothing to do with astrology, as may be supposed. The expression originated during a great naval battle, in which two men-of-war were lately engaged. The engagement had lasted several hours, and one of the vessels was badly cut up. The other bore down upon her to demand her surrender, but the captain, officer, and crew of the disabled vessel had no thought of surrendering. They were resolved to fight to the last, fight while a plank remained beneath their feet. The other vessel steering alongside, her captain sprang upon the rail and cried:—

"I call upon you to surrender."

"Never," exclaimed the other.

"Then I will show you out of the water."

"Blow away," was the reply.

A terrible broadside poured in upon the disabled ship, but it was promptly returned, although with much less effect.

"Will you surrender now?" shouted the commander of the victorious ship.

"Surrender quick!"

"Surrender!" exclaimed the captain of the heroic crew, who, with eyes blazing, glared, was preparing to hurl another broadside upon the foe.

"Surrender. Yes, I can answer!"

Read the answer in these stars!—Boston Courier.

SATISFACTORY LAND ARRANGEMENTS.

It is understood that while the Minister of the Interior was here a few days ago he arranged to have township 24 in ranges two and three, west of the 5th meridian, which are included in the Cochrane lease, thrown open to settlement, with the exception of two sections on the north side of Bow which are reserved. The land office is now considering applications for entry in the ranges mentioned, and there is no doubt will be treated according to priority of application when entry is officially granted. Mr. White also arranged the difficulty at which some of the old lease held by Mr. Frank White. The lease will now be given to the Moley settlers. Mr. White taking a lease instead near the Cochrane mine.

(Special despatch to the Herald.)

LONDON, July 22nd.—The Queen has accepted the resignation of the Gladstone ministry. As soon as the messenger returns from Osborne with the Queen's acceptance, Gladstone will not proceed to Osborne to personally deliver to the Queen the seals of office until her Majesty shall have appointed a successor. It is officially announced that the Queen will summon Lord Salisbury to form the new ministry. Gladstone has indirectly advised Parrell against pursuing an obdurate policy in the coming Parliament, since in 1880 the course pursued by the Irish member did much to throw discredit upon the Irish cause, and it will be necessary, in order to obtain a majority of one upon division to secure 57 out of 71 Liberal Unionists. The Tories have a majority of 123 over the Gladstone and Liberal combined, and 39 over a coalition of Gladstone and Parrellites.

The taking of evidence in the Crawford-Dillo case has concluded.

At Wimbledon yesterday, the score for the Knappe cup resulted as follows:—England 666; Canada 646; Germany 636; Australia 626; Jersey 626; and India 596.
